GOED rep hailed Campus Wizard '19

By ERWIN M. ELICOT, JR.

Bryan Jay E. Maraya, a fourth-year student taking up Bachelor of Secondary Education Major in Biological Science, won the Search for Campus Wizard at the Inner Court yesterday.

During the last round of the knock-outs, Maraya got the winning answer against Siofrey Alberca, a Bachelor of Science major in Electronics and Communications Engineering.

"The Search for Campus Wizard was a difficult challenge though. I didn't expect to be the winner because I have a lot of tough competitors like the College of Engineering. They are more likely to be the competitors of this event. As a representative of the College of Education, I really did my best to raise our department and myself as well," Maraya said.

Maraya was awarded a Certificate of Recognition and a check worth Php 5,000 pesos sponsored by the Rotaract of Kandaya.

SSG reopens booth competition

By ANNISA S. YANGZON

Eighteen campus organizations opened their respective booths to the students of EVSU in a bazaar set up at the EVSU Quadrangle to offer their services and likewise try to recruit new members into their roster.

Officially opened yesterday, the bazaar will sit this Friday to allow the organizations to also generate income for their respective charters.

Supreme Student Government (SSG) Senator and chairman of the activity, Hon. Cherebon Jomar Adolfo formally opened the competition which will give out two major awards, namely Best Designed Booth and Most Visited Booth.

Said competition was judged based on the following criteria namely, 40% for the Creativity and Resourcefulness, 30% for the Relevance to the Organization's Innovations, and 15% for the Peace and Order in the area and likewise the attendance of students and faculty visiting the booth.

BOOTH-IFUL. As part of the 112th Founding Anniversary, different organizations put up a bazaar at the soccer field to add color to the festivities and possibly win the Best in Booth award.

(SSND), Break Point, Junior Asia Pacific Entrepreneurs (JASPEN), Rotaract, Hotel and Restaurant Technology Student Society, Alpha Phi Omega (International Philippines Incorporated Service Fraternity and Sorority Delta Phi Chapter), Sigma Iota Fraternity (Beta Rho Sorority), Alpha Kapa Rho (AKP), Tau Gamma PH, Institute of Electronics and Communications Engineers in the Philippines, Gender and Development Youth Coordinators (GAD-YC), Information Technology (IT), and the Juniors and Seniors Class Organization (JSCO) all put up their tents after registering with SSG and paying a 50-peso registration fee.

“We are not really after the competition or whatever prizes. We just want to showcase the talents that entrepreneurs have and of course one of our purpose is to develop the lower years like the freshies. We just want to give entertainment and fun to the students of EVSU,” said Melanie Diaz, President of the Junior Asia Pacific Entrepreneurs (JASPEN).

Aside from the booth competition, activities like the Search for Campus Wizard, Amazing Race, Poster Making Competition, DanceSing, Miss EVSU Q&A and Foam Party will transpire during the week.

Winners for the said competition will be announced on Friday. •

SLD Playground Demo takes on '60's vibe

By CHERRY MAE L. TABUENA

Imbibing the atmosphere of the '60's era, the Laboratory School Department put up a playground demonstration to commemorate its years of innovation and excellence.

Grade 7 to Grade 10 students showcased their performances wearing the classic retro outfits at the Inner Court yesterday.

Said activity which highlighted the LSD Days '19 was anchored on the theme: Eastern Visayas State University School Laboratory Department Through the Years of Innovation and Excellence.

"The goal of LSD Days is to showcase the best of LSD throughout the years in terms of its curriculum that developed and produced quality students and also, in the future opening of the Senior High as part of its innovation," said Prof. Joel A. Alfarero, LSD OIC Principal.

Other than the playground demonstration, LSD also prepared the Photovoice and LSD Exhibit to be inaugurated tomorrow at the Auditorium. •

"We're very much grateful to our administrators for giving us the opportunity to have this day, to showcase the student's talents, because this is very rare, and in the previous years there are no performances like this," Ms. Galaroza said when asked about the purpose of the said show.

Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dr. Dennis C. De Paz shared that the performance reminded him of his high school, the struggles, challenges and all.

"It just proved that they are not just learning in a four-walled classroom but they go outside without fear to show their talents," he added.

The musical show ended with a song performed by all the casts featuring Miss Culture and Arts 2018 and Ms. EVCAA 2019, Angel Rose Tambal who was invited in the show.

"As one of the casts, I can say that if you are in EVSU you will not just improve as a student but as a person as well. It honed my skill and my talent. There is really an improvement day by day," said Linnah Gwyneth Gerilla, one of the casts. •

Amazing Race dared EVSUnistas' wit, endurance

By JEAN MAICA G. VELASCO

Eight stations littered with various obstacle courses tested the patience, teamwork, and strategies of the eight competing teams in an Amazing Race organized by the Supreme Student Government (SSG) in front of the Administration Building yesterday.

Said race was part of the series of activities initiated by the SSG to establish unity and camaraderie between the students of EVSU.

According to SSG's Vice President, Cokie Mae Costelo, "the activity is mainly for the students and not just for the organization members so that students will feel they are part of the foundation week."

Some of the obstacles the participants had to endure were drinking vinegar, doing military exercises, memorizing the university hymn, among others.

"Masaya. Syempre nag enjoy ako bisan damo nak samad. Tapos dire man talaga importante kun hino it madaog or hino it pirde kay an importante an teamwork man tas nagka mayda ghap ako bago na friends na mga participants ghap kanina." said Ms. Naome Cobia, a BAEL participant.

Winners of the said race will be announced on Friday during the Students' Night which will likewise culminate the week-long student activities. •

In addition, 21 students from the College of Engineering (COE) and the College of Education (COED) participated that is composed of two stages, the elimination round which covered multiple choice questions regarding general knowledge while the knock-out round with identification questions, also general knowledge.

In the knock out round, a participant who will not get the right answer will be eliminated from the search right away.

"Actually, I didn't expect that I will top the elimination round because I lack preparations. Even though

I didn't win, I quite enjoyed the competition," said Kristel Grace Amistoso, a participant from COE.

The Search for Campus Wizard 2019 was organized and initiated by the Sigma Iota Fraternity and Beta Rho Sorority Alumni Association in partnership with the Rotary Club of Kandaya, Tacloban.

"We conducted this activity because our fraternity aims to recognize intelligent students within the campus. This event also serves as a flagship of our fraternity," said Jedalyn V. Mahinay, President of Sigma Iota Fraternity and Beta Rho Sorority EVSU Chapter. •

Green Peace takes EVSUnistas to a night of reggae music

By JEREMY M. LLORAG

Green Peace sets everyone on high grounds with their good original reggae music and energetic performances with their front act Pink Nick and Maroon and Gold last night at EVSU-Inner Court.

Guitarists Bjorn Farinelli, Harris Gomez and Nic Galon, bass guitarist Matt Villalino and a grade 10 lead singer Sy Oledan stated that their talents made them unite as a team even they are from different schools.

Maroon and Gold, an EVSU band also showcased their talents performing trending songs like Buwan by Juan Carlos. From saxophone of Arthur Juanico, drums of Harvey Paul Ablay, lead guitar of Patrick Barbosa, bass guitar of Nelito Agus, percussion of Mike Aboga and to the vocal of Alanis Mae Creado, there is no denying that EVSU has great talents.

JUVENILE'S WISDOM

By ALYSSA ISABEL D. PAGARAO

Being a millennial in this techie world is devastating for a fact that our parents are dragged on their practices of the past. Grasping the standards of our parents is difficult for today's generation. Also, it is also hard for their part to make a huge shift into our routines.

Just today, the Laboratory School Department filled the gaps between these thoughts as they celebrate their LSD days flaunting their respective talents through the variety show.

"This is a just presentation to showcase our talents and to prove that we also have the rights to compete with the college students," Orven Navarro SSC President asserted on an interview regarding their celebration of the SLD Days.

Maximizing Convenience

Often called useless and consumed by the internet and social media, the youth of today, it has been proven that the generation Y have the capability to make things easier and faster.

The millennials as workers are considered to be intrinsically motivated. In fact, 65% of the millennial said that personal development is the most important factor in their careers and are very much willing to learn.

Also, millennials are accounted as cost-effective for they do not need much money to accomplish work for they are resourceful in their own respective ways. It has been also proven that the Gen Y settles with small salaries in exchange for flexibility, happiness and passion.

Aside from being cost-effective the millennials are the most genuine generation that they consider much of what they feel, how they should react to not hurt others' feelings and become truer to themselves.

Writing better plots

Little did we know that the youth of today has a huge grasp to the shift that we have been doubting on to. They are more capable of crafting better plots of their respective lives because they are given all the possible resources to enjoy convenience.

Most of the GenY people are optimistic and has better to take risks and sacrifices for the sake of making their life better and building a better version of themselves. They may have been noisy all over social media but these make changes that are beyond the perception of the others.

There has been an increasing number of entrepreneurs in the society who just started from a low key investment and bloomed through time.

Slowing down the changes are impossible but coping up to what the reality is our only chance to at least live a life and embrace the better consequences for the youth to feel their acceptance.

Hide and Seek

No one could probably argue that the Supreme Student Government and the administrators tried to put up, in their utmost efforts, activities that will serve as an anchor point for the students to participate in this year's Founding Anniversary. Yet again, they are under fire after a series of unfortunate events caused them to lose both financial resources and interest from the students. Who's to blame? Different parties have different takes on the issue. However, all seem to point to one main problem – mobility.

According to sources, by January this year, the admin has already laid out plans to secure the financial resource to shoulder the expenses that will be incurred during the festivities. One of which is the EVSURun, the program that became the pot of gold for the week-long celebration. Prior to the fun run, it has been agreed upon by both student leaders and administrators that the proceeds will be divided into 80-20. The 20% will be given to SSG for their utilization provided that they help in the distribution and sales of the tickets. However, they were only able to raise minimal amount in comparison to their budget proposal which forced the administrators to prioritize matters “they deem need the money more.” As a result, the SSG does not have financial resource to fuel the activities they’ve already laid out and needs cash prizes. This is where the problem starts.

First and foremost, according to the SSG officers, their trust fund has already been exhausted. This raised concerns as to what happened to their funds considering that each semester, the trust funds are replenished from the 50-peso contribution each student pay for during enrollment before the FHE was implemented. If their funds are depleted, how are they supposed to deliver their mandate considering also that they are the highest governing student body in the university. Another is whether or not their officers are well capacitated to function accordingly. Now, are they victims? Was the admin being stingy? Debatable.

Mobility is something that is expected from all leaders. Knowing that the situation already has some complications, it is then the responsibility of the leaders to find ways to make sure that these are mitigated.

The SSG could have thought of other avenues in which they could raise funds to shoulder their own expenses without relying too much on the budget allocation from the admin. Sad to say, the SSG also slipped on marketing their activities. Hying up their projects by creating different promotions could have been a great help in their situation. Also, exhausting and putting teeth on the possibilities and capabilities of the Council of Leaders would have made the burden lighter. It is however, commendable, that despite these seemingly endless challenges, the SSG moved forward to the point that they are already using their monies from their own pockets. The admin likewise could've been wearier of what's happening to the trust fund of the student government.

This feud would've been avoided had these two parties met half way in creating their avenues. Mobilizing each constituents is also one way to secure that when the event already transpires, those who are expected to act don't go playing hide and seek.

Per se

“New technologies, new cure for illnesses are examples of the outcomes of the innovative minds of people throughout the ages.”

Have you ever thought about flying cars, robots, and holograms? For once in your life, have you ever imagined life with three-headed bulldogs and talking animals? If ever it occurred to you the possibility and the beauty of having a great future, then we are on the same page.

Eastern Visayas State University (EVSU) is constantly developing for the past 112 years. From manual preparations of documents to computerized storing and printing of important papers. From makeshift classrooms to having 3-storey functional buildings. From having only one campus to having four more integrated external campuses.

Throughout the years of innovation and excellence, EVSU was able to meet the increasing and changing demands of the students. They were open for new changes. They became more globally competitive.

How? Innovation is the key.

Innovation is very crucial in the present time since it will define the progress or regress of our future. Lucky for us if we'll experience it like that in the fairy tales but it would be worst if we'll see it rain bullfrogs.

New technologies, new cure for illnesses are examples of the outcomes of the innovative minds of people throughout the ages. New inventions are of great help to us in making our daily chores easier and faster. Modern technologies made our lives more comfortable and more human-friendly, if there's such a word.

But the thing that we should not forget are the people who made all those inventions and innovations attainable. All the new things that we are seeing now would not be possible if not because of the genius minds of the people behind.

Right mind begets successful innovation. Successful innovation begets brighter future.

We should try to be more innovative in order for us to change and be able to meet the demands of life. We should remember to appreciate all the people behind great innovations because great novelties will not exist per se. •

Expectations vs. Reality

“What was aimed at entertainment landed on frustrations and questions.”

With the week-long celebration of the 112th Founding Anniversary come the expectations of day-long parties, loads of games and numerous to-look-forward-to activities for the students. Now, the delivery of such expectations is where we base our definition of success for such an event.

Org Fair, Amazing Race, Campus Wizard, Concert and Students Night were some of the events organized by the Supreme Students Government (SSG) and was expected to hype up the students so that they would really be able to feel the spirit of the celebration. However, although the events did transpire today, it did not fall according to plans.

The flow of the events was confusing, there were no official programs circulated among the participants which led to majority of the students questioning, “Did it start already?”, “Ano’t ganap yana?”, “Amo la ini?”. The expectations of the students declined because they had no idea what was happening and probably made them decide to go home instead.

Not only was there a lack of couriers, everything was scattered in pieces and was barely organized as a whole. Participants of every events didn’t know where it was stationed, when will it start and a few more to mention. What was aimed at entertainment landed on frustrations and questions instead.

However, to the organizations were not to be solely blamed about such a “mishap”, but to the students as well. There are few who are really willing to participate and mostly just happy that they have a week-long ‘vacation’. One thing that lacks in our university is student involvement and that is just sad for events like this.

The students’ activities barely begun and more are still expected to bring joy and wonderful memories. We cannot finish a story that is still far from ending. Maybe, just maybe, there will be a turn of events and things will be filled with entertainment after all. Let’s just hope for the best that the organizers will be able to cope up with the students desire to participate so that students will be more engaging and more involve with our celebration. •

Memoir

Artemis

I came from the sour, tender taste of beef marinated in soy sauce and lemon that we made in that same kitchen where we danced to our own voices.

I came from the fresh fragrance of cherries and vanilla that reminded me of your calm nature.

I came from the winds howling along to the rattles of the rooftops that is similar to how we argue on petty little things.

I came from the sight of you smiling with your eyes glistening with so much joy and passion.

I came from the warmth of your hug that made me want to melt in your velvet arms, but suddenly I woke up with tears in my eyes, wishing that everything wasn't just a dream.
